

DESIGN A THREE-PART FLIPPED LESSON

StudySync has a collection of Skill videos and Spotlight lessons that teachers can use to flip their instruction and transfer information online. This guide walks teachers through the process of using the video instruction in StudySync to create a three-part flipped lesson.

STEP 01

Pre-video Activity

Before students watch a video or complete a video lesson, teachers will want to design a pre-video activity that creates context for the video students will be watching. Teachers can use this pre-video activity to:

- Pique the students' interest
- Ask students to make predictions
- Drive inquiry and get students generating questions related to the video topic
- Assess prior knowledge

STEP 02

Flip and Engage

Select a Skill video or Spotlight lesson to use in this flipped lesson. Each Skill video and Spotlight lesson presents information in the form of a video, includes a written Model section, and has a Your Turn activity to get students practicing the skill presented.

Teachers can maximize the effectiveness of the videos by engaging students around that video content and encouraging them to think critically about the information being presented. Teachers may want to ask students to take notes or complete a guided notes activity as they watch the videos. Taking notes will help them be more successful as they practice with the Your Turn activity.

Post-video Activity

Once students have watched the video and practiced with the Your Turn activity, teachers will want to design an additional follow-up activity that encourages them to apply what they learned. Teachers should consider engaging students in additional practice activities to ensure they understand the concepts presented in the video. The students' work on these post-video activities should yield formative assessment data that teachers can use to track student progress in relation to specific skills. That way, they can identify students who need additional support, practice, or instruction.
