Careers are our focus from day one

You'll be prepared to serve wisely and with professionalism.

During your time in law school, the career advisors in Colorado Law's Career Development Office will get to know you and your career goals, encourage you to take an intentional and creative approach to planning your career, and give you the tools to succeed.

Our commitment to helping you excel in your professional endeavors begins with individual meetings during your first semester to plan the next steps to your 1L summer job. Our focus is for each student to obtain at least four high-quality work experiences while in law school. In summer 2022, 95% of the classes of 2023 and 2024 worked in substantive legal or law-related jobs.

We will connect you with employers during the academic year and the summer, and we maintain close ties with a variety of employers and work with them individually to find students and graduates who will be a good fit. Events such as the JD Pathways career conference and career speaker series will help you build a network of contacts and explore practice areas.

colorado.edu/law/careers

Employers recognize the value of a Colorado Law education, and it shows in our employment outcomes.

Class of 2022 employment*

95% of graduates reported employment.

93% of graduates employed in a full-time, long-term, non-school-funded job for which bar passage was required or a JD degree was an advantage, placing Colorado Law at #26 in the nation.

82% of graduates employed in a full-time, long-term, non-school-funded job for which bar passage was required.

*All statistics reflect employment 10 months after graduation (March 15, 2023).

Your Colorado Law degree opens the door to a vast alumni network

As a Colorado Law graduate, you will join a global network of close to 8,500 alumni who are leading the nation from the bench to the boardroom to courthouses across the world. Graduates live and practice across all 50 states, 45 countries, and six continents.

● Primary residence of at least one Colorado Law graduate (JD and LLM).

As you can see, a degree from Colorado Law presents career opportunities in every legal sector and beyond, throughout the world.

While our graduates often live and work outside of Colorado's borders, many choose to stay or eventually return in order to enjoy the state's unbeatable quality of life.

Alumni Success

How do we know that a legal education from Colorado Law truly opens doors and empowers passionate change-makers? Meet just a few of the exceptional individuals who began their legal journey at Colorado Law, and you'll see our best supporting evidence.

Natalie S. Ellwood '69

Natalie Ellwood began practicing law as a public defender in 1970. From her high school days as a volunteer for John Kennedy's presidential election to serving as the Colorado Women's Bar Association's founding president, she has tirelessly championed equality throughout her career. She entered law school in the fall of 1966 with her husband, Hank Ellwood, becoming the first husband and wife duo to enter Colorado Law together. After many years running her own practice with her husband as partner, in 1990 she retired. When Hank passed away in 2019, Natalie was inspired to reactivate her license to practice law. Her dedication to the fight for equality has now extended to the fight against ageism, in addition to gender and racial bias.

Judge Gary Jackson '70

Judge Gary Jackson's celebrated career spans over five decades. He began in the Denver District Attorney's Office in 1970 and entered private practice in 1976. In his 37 years of private practice, he served as the trial attorney for hundreds of clients including the Denver Metropolitan Baseball District in acquiring the property to build Coors Field for the Colorado Rockies. From 2013 to 2020, he presided in the Criminal Division of Denver County Court.

Jackson has been recognized with a legion of accolades and awards including the Colorado Bar Association Award of Merit—the highest recognition for a lawyer in the state. Among his many accomplishments, he is proud to have co-founded the Sam Cary Bar Association, the vanguard of all specialty bars of color in Colorado, in 1971. He was also a co-founder of the Colorado Criminal Defense Bar in 1976. Most recently, in 2021, he was inducted into the National Bar Association Fred Gray Hall of Fame.

“I never wanted to be subservient to anyone, and I am most fortunate to have my law degree as I can take care of myself mentally, physically, and financially. I feel most proud and frankly joyful about that ability. Our continued success as lawyers and professionals is our continuing answer to those people who do not treat us with much respect.”

“From my first year of law school to the present day, I have held myself to the highest standards of competence, commitment, compassion, and character to carry forward the visions of my great-grandfather who overcame the burdens of being born a slave in Missouri to build a better life in Colorado for our family. Colorado Law played an integral part in my success.”

Adrian Untermeyer '20

Adrian Untermeyer fights to improve our society as an attorney, urbanist, and historian. He currently practices in-house at New Jersey Transit, America's second-busiest commuter railroad, where he tackles capital projects that include the Gateway Program and New York's Pennsylvania Station. He is a frequent commentator on planning, preservation, and transportation issues impacting New York and the nation. His writing has appeared in The New York Times, Gotham Gazette, and the Transportation Law Journal, and he was named an Emerging Leader in Transportation by New York University's Rudin Center. In 2016, Untermeyer was featured in The New York Times for his successful plan to improve the Port Authority Bus Terminal by creating a performing arts center inside.

Charles Bedford '92

Charles Bedford is an environmentalist using private capital to accelerate climate action. He currently serves as chief impact officer at Carbon Growth Partners, a leading global investment manager in carbon finance, a principal at Keelback Consulting, a sustainability advisory firm, and as Adjunct Professor at the Hong Kong University of Science and Technology. He previously served as AP

Regional Managing Director for The Nature Conservancy (TNC) and has led TNC's Colorado Chapter. At TNC, he helped build new conservation NGO's in China, Indonesia, Mongolia, Myanmar, and New Zealand. He has served as director of the Colorado State Land Board, overseeing 3 million hectares of state lands, Legal Counsel to Colorado Governor Roy Romer '52 and attorney with the firm of Kutak Rock.

Meshach Rhoades '04

Meshach Rhoades is a managing partner for Crowell & Moring LLP. Her commitment to diversity and equity has led to multiple awards, including the law school's Dean Edward C. King Making A Difference Award in 2019. She is passionately involved with local and national organizations including the Center for Legal Inclusiveness, Colorado Legal Services, Leadership Council on Legal Diversity, American Civil Liberties Union, and Colorado Hispanic Bar Association.

She co-founded the Latinas First Foundation, which honors unsung heroines and trailblazers in the Colorado Latina community, while focusing on building community for Hispanic women, and awarding scholarships to collegiate and postgraduate students, as well as coaching women on career progression. They have awarded over 150 scholarships in 10 years to incredible Latinas in Colorado.

“Honestly, my friends who went to the Ivy Leagues didn't get the same kind of love and care, the robust and interdisciplinary career resources, close community, and opportunities that we did—and that's what has allowed me the freedom to have this rich, expansive career trajectory.”

“My three years at Colorado Law set me on a path that had me working at the nexus of law, policy, and the environment for governors, senators, ministers, and presidents. CU set me on a path to advocate on behalf of public lands, create new national parks around the world, and start up new businesses that bring finance to nature. My classmates and professors continue to motivate me, even now, to do more, better.”

“Colorado Law gave me the tools I needed to advocate for myself, my clients, and for a legal community that can actually reflect the powerful diversity of our nation.”

Be your whole self in law school

When they are not learning the law, Colorado Law students take advantage of our location in one of the most beautiful places in the U.S. From hiking the Flatirons to strolling the historic Pearl Street Mall, visiting the restaurants and craft breweries of “America’s Foodiest Town,” and enjoying 300+ days of sunshine a year, there are plenty of opportunities to create a healthy work-life balance during law school.

Academic Areas of Excellence

American Indian Law

As one of the nation's leaders in tribal law and policy, Colorado Law's American Indian law program is the region's convening institution for tribal leaders, advocates, scholars, and community members to address the most pressing challenges in American Indian law and policy. Our program will prepare you for all aspects of Indian law practice, whether you are interested in working in tribal governments, federal agencies, or law firms.

Entrepreneurial and Business Law

Boulder is recognized internationally as an entrepreneurial powerhouse, and Colorado Law is at the heart of this community. Whether you want to practice mergers and acquisitions at a traditional large law firm, work at the SEC, counsel a startup through a venture capital transaction, or launch your own venture, Colorado Law provides you the skills and expertise to help you succeed.

Juvenile and Family Law

Colorado Law's juvenile and family law program covers a broad range of practice areas that connect students to specialized learning opportunities and real-world experiences in this field through in-depth courses, research projects, externships, and clinical services that provide free legal help to low-income Colorado residents.

Natural Resources, Energy, and Environmental Law

Ranked consistently among the best in the nation, Colorado Law's natural resources, energy, and environmental law program is one of the strongest and most in-depth of its kind. Faculty members are national leaders deeply committed to creative teaching with a long-standing reputation for innovative work on water resources, climate change, and energy. Being at the base of the Rocky Mountains, you will directly interact with and explore the places, issues, and communities you will study.

Public Service Law

Public service law is central to our culture and academic offerings. Public service, both during and after law school, can involve any of a broad range of substantive areas, including civil rights law, veterans' affairs, criminal law, consumer law, education law, environmental law, juvenile and family law, health law and policy, and immigration law, among others.

Technology and Intellectual Property Law

Colorado Law is at the forefront of technology and intellectual property law. Whether you are interested in litigation, transactional work, or policy concerns, Colorado Law has one of the most comprehensive legal programs in the nation for those interested in exploring the frontiers of entrepreneurial law, technology policy, and intellectual property.

Areas of Study Spotlight

Natural Resources, Energy, and Environmental Law

Tackle today’s most pressing issues in water, climate, and energy law.

For over half a century, Colorado Law has set the gold standard for natural resources, energy, and environmental law. Our commitment to teaching and research in these areas complements the school’s physical location in the Rocky Mountain West—a region defined by its vast natural resources, public lands and parks, and many American Indian reservations.

Our innovative environmental and natural resources curriculum, with broad-based courses, specialized seminars, and hands-on practicum opportunities, provides you with the key range of competencies needed to become a multidisciplinary practitioner. We help prepare you for a successful career, from private practice to public service, and train you to be ready for a world of constant change.

Protect Indigenous Peoples' Self-Determination.

Courses in American Indian & Indigenous Peoples Law address major questions regarding the contours of colonization and self-determination, as well as individual and collective rights, in Indigenous, National, and International legal systems. Topics of study include Indigenous Peoples' land rights, self-governance, religious freedoms, criminal and civil jurisdiction, political participation, child welfare, natural resources, and economic development. With academic opportunities for all Colorado Law students, our approach to American Indian & Indigenous Peoples Law is deeply grounded in Indian Country and the law school serves as a convening institution for Indigenous leaders, advocates, scholars, and community members.

Students may gain representational experience through the American Indian Law Clinic and earn a Certificate in American Indian Law showing their specialization in the field. Additionally, students often participate in Colorado Law faculty initiatives, such as The Implementation Project, a joint initiative with the Native American Rights Fund, and The Maya Land Rights and Development Project.

Business, Technology and Entrepreneurship Law

An epicenter of innovation and entrepreneurship in the information age.

Colorado Law provides one of the leading legal programs for entrepreneurship, business, and information technology law and policy in the nation. Beginning in year one, you may participate in transactional law and entrepreneurship competitions, benefit from classes like Negotiations and Venture Capital, make investment decisions through the student-run Deming Center Venture Fund, and draft agreements for startup clients in the Entrepreneurial Law Clinic. The Silicon Flatirons Center for Law, Technology, and Entrepreneurship and our prestigious technology law journal also provide access to a community of professionals leading the future of law, policy, and technology.

The Denver-Boulder metro area is the heart of one of the nation's premier telecommunications and technology hubs generating experiential opportunities in a variety of roles. Colorado Law also benefits from a substantial network of alumni and supporters across the nation—from Silicon Valley to Washington, D.C., and everywhere in between. We prepare you for practice while also giving you the tools to solve problems creatively for clients over the length of your career.

Strengthen your student experience through involvement with our research centers

Getches-Wilkinson Center for Natural Resources, Energy, and the Environment

Founded in 1983, the Getches-Wilkinson Center for Natural Resources, Energy, and the Environment is the oldest and preeminent law school institute in the country dedicated to natural resources law. The center works on diverse and increasingly interwoven topics, including environmental justice, climate change, public lands management, energy development, the governance of the Colorado River, and tribal resource management.
colorado.edu/law/gwc

Silicon Flatirons Center for Law, Technology, and Entrepreneurship

Silicon Flatirons is an interdisciplinary research center that provides unique opportunities for students to interact with high-level attorneys, entrepreneurs, policymakers, and professionals at the intersection of law, policy, and technology.

In addition to hosting more than 100 conferences and events annually, Silicon Flatirons offers specialized internship programs in Colorado; Washington, D.C.; the Bay Area; and elsewhere for students interested in careers in technology or startups. Students accepted into these programs gain a competitive edge with real-world experience.

Unmatched opportunities to learn beyond the classroom

Daniels Fund Ethics Initiative Collegiate Program at Colorado Law

Through a range of programming, including networking events, speaker series, case competitions, and new courses and curricula, the Daniels Fund Ethics Initiative Collegiate Program allows Colorado Law to make ethics and professionalism a central part of every law student's education. By building these skills in law school, you'll be able to seamlessly enter the working world and add value immediately.

D.C. Summer Program

Every year, Silicon Flatirons provides placement assistance for students interested in technology and communications issues to work in Washington, D.C., for the summer. Participating organizations include the Federal Communications Commission, Federal Trade Commission, National Emergency Number Association, Information Technology and Innovation Foundation, Public Knowledge, Common Cause, Verizon, AT&T, and Disney. The Hatfield Scholars Program, which runs parallel to the D.C. Summer Program, provides grants for summer internships in government or public interest positions.

The Colorado Law of the River Seminar

After a semester of classroom learning, the seminar culminates in a two-week rafting trip through the Grand Canyon. Developed by Professor Sarah Krakoff, the seminar provides a deep dive into the American West's most important resource—the water of the Colorado River. Weaving together multiple facets of natural resources, energy, and environmental law and other disciplines including American Indian law, conservation biology, climate science, anthropology, and more, students learn about the many areas of law and policy that affect management of the Colorado River and the communities that depend on it.

Korey Wise Innocence Project

The Korey Wise Innocence Project gives students the unique opportunity to assist people who believe they have been convicted despite being innocent of any offense. Colorado Law students evaluate these claims to see if there are factual and legal grounds to return to court and work with volunteer attorneys to further investigate cases.

U.S. Rep. Joe Neguse '09

Elected in November 2018 to represent Colorado's 2nd Congressional District in the U.S. Congress, Neguse is Colorado's first African-American congressman, one of only a few first-generation Americans to serve in Congress, and one of the youngest members of Congress in the nation.

Serving our community is at our core

LRAP provides partial loan repayment awards to graduates who choose qualifying public interest work. The program awarded approximately 30 qualified applicants with $6,500 awards in the 2023 award year to help pay down their student loans.

Public Service Pledge

Incoming law students may volunteer to pledge to complete at least 50 hours of law-related public service during their time in law school. Over the last four years, Colorado Law students have volunteered a total of over 36,200 hours of public service.

Public Service Fellowships

Public service fellowship opportunities allow students and recent graduates to gain valuable work experience without the burden of additional financial hardship. Recent fellowship recipients worked at the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, the Department of Health and Human Services, the United Nations International Law Commission, the American Civil Liberties Union of Colorado, public defenders' offices, and elsewhere.

Service opportunities

Begin making an impact your 1L year.

Acequia Assistance Project

The Acequia Assistance Project is a joint effort by the Getches-Wilkinson Center, Colorado Open Lands, and the Sangre de Cristo Acequia Association to provide low- or no-cost legal representation and educational materials to acequias, traditional Hispanic irrigation communities, in southern Colorado. Students develop professional skills, receive mentorship from supervising attorneys, and assist an underrepresented Colorado community.

Maya Land Rights and Development Project

Law students work with Belizean indigenous organizations to help secure Maya customary land tenure and promote sustainable economic development opportunities for Maya communities.

Immigration and Citizenship Law Program

The program connects students interested in immigration law and policy with lawyers in the community who are involved in outreach, litigation, and policy work for externship opportunities and pro bono projects serving immigrants.

Colorado Law Constitution Day Project

Law students visit high school classrooms to deliver a one-day, interactive lesson on a current topic in constitutional law in honor of the nationally recognized signing of the Constitution on Sept. 17.

Gain hands-on experience

No matter your area of interest, there's a legal clinic to help you hone your skills.

Since 1948, Colorado Law's clinical education program has prepared students with unparalleled opportunities to practice law with actual clients. Each year about 110 students serve 400–500 clients on real cases or projects. Every Colorado Law student may take a clinic.

American Indian Law Clinic

At one of the first American Indian law clinics in the nation, students gain faculty-supervised experience providing legal assistance in a variety of matters, including tribal sovereignty, child welfare, preservation of tribal identity, employment discrimination, public benefits, preservation of Native lands, and more.

Civil Practice Clinic

Students represent low-income clients in family law, Social Security disability, and immigration asylum cases. The clinic also focuses on employment law, with students representing low-income wage workers and employees who have been the victims of discrimination, among others.

Criminal Defense Clinic

In the first criminal defense clinic in the nation, students learn basic criminal practice skills and represent clients in actual cases, from beginning to end, in municipal and county courts in Boulder County.

Criminal/Immigration Defense Clinic

Students represent noncitizen clients in both criminal and immigration court, including applicants for Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA).

Entrepreneurial Law Clinic

Students work with local entrepreneurs, providing transactional legal services for the formation and development of small businesses in Colorado.

Juvenile and Family Law Clinic

Students handle a full range of legal matters related to youth and families, including representing low-income clients in public actions, such as child welfare and juvenile justice cases, or private actions, such as divorce and child custody matters.

Getches-Green Natural Resources and Environmental Law Clinic

Students represent public interest clients in environmental litigation related to federal public land protection. Students learn about expert testimony and witness preparation, analysis of detailed scientific and environmental data, and submission of complex legal briefs.

Samuelson-Glushko Technology Law and Policy Clinic

Students advocate in the public interest concerning technology issues in front of regulatory entities, courts, legislatures, and standard-setting bodies.

Sustainable Community Development Clinic

Students engage in economic development projects, both on behalf of clients and on behalf of the public interest, with a goal of increasing social justice and social enterprise in a range of substantive areas, including land use, housing, local food, and healthy communities.

Learn by doing

Experiential education includes lawyering activities outside the classroom—clinics, externships, appellate and trial competitions, and voluntary public service work—as well as experientially oriented classroom learning. Colorado Law’s Experiential Learning Program provides students with a well-rounded learning experience.

Competitions

Colorado Law students compete in more than 20 appellate, trial level, and transactional competitions each year across the country and internationally.

Recent competitions include the American Bar Association’s National Appellate Advocacy Competition, Jeffery G. Miller Pace National Environmental Law Moot Court Competition, the American College of Trial Lawyers National Trial Competition, The Costello Mock Trial Competition, Fordham’s Basketball Negotiation Competition, and the Willem C. Vis International Commercial Arbitration Moot.

Externships

The externship program gives students critical experiential learning opportunities by performing substantive legal work for judges, government officials, public interest institutions, and nonprofits. With approximately 160 placements each year and over 25,000 hours of cumulative work locally and nationwide, students acquire academic credit in addition to invaluable experience for future careers. Some placements may offer financial compensation in addition to academic credit.

Student-led Journals

University of Colorado Law Review

The flagship academic journal at Colorado Law since 1929, the University of Colorado Law Review publishes four times per year on general topics of legal importance.

Colorado Environmental Law Journal

Published since 1989, the journal provides a forum for the most pressing issues related to natural resources, energy, and environmental law and policy on local, regional, and global scales.

Colorado Technology Law Journal (CTLJ)

Founded in 2001, the CTLJ has since established a position among the elite national technology and telecommunications law journals.

Student Life

It's no secret that law school is an intense undertaking, but students at Colorado Law receive a world-class legal education that doesn't come at the expense of their well-being. With unmatched access to nature's playground and a remarkably supportive school culture, your rigorous studies will be balanced with rewarding extracurriculars.

Student Organizations

The law school is home to 40+ student-run organizations. Whether you're seeking community in one of our affinity groups, like APALSA (Asian Pacific American Law Students Association) and BLSA (Black Law Students Association), or would like to dive deeper into your academic field of interest with a group like the Construction and Real Estate Law Association and the Health Law Society, you will find your people here.

Council for Racial Justice and Equity

The Council for Racial Justice and Equity (CRJE) was formed in the summer of 2020 as nationwide racial justice protests oriented America's attention to the injustices Black communities face. The Black Law Student Association, students from BIPOC-led organizations, and allies worked together to form the Council. The Council advocates for and designs policy changes concerning diversity and racial justice.

Along with the law school administration, CRJE created the Solidarity Suite, Colorado Law's first student multicultural center dedicated to supporting, empowering, and celebrating law students of color and those of historically marginalized and excluded groups. This space fosters a more inclusive, aware, and socially just legal community.

Student Bar Association

As Colorado Law's student government, the SBA represents the interests of law students and oversees activities and funding of student organizations, administers the school's honor code with the Honor Council, and sponsors many educational, social, and athletic activities. On a typical Thursday, you could attend THAC (Thursday Afternoon Club), and enjoy food and drinks with your friends overlooking the beautiful Flatirons from the Schaden Commons balcony.

Academic Success

Students at Colorado Law receive personalized academic support throughout their law school journey. Before the start of their first year, students have the opportunity to attend WOLF Week, a course designed to offer a supplemental orientation week for new students. Wolf Week is beneficial to many, including first-generation law students and those who have been out of school for some time. During WOLF Week, students learn about fundamental concepts related to the legal system that sometimes get left out of other discussions.

In the fall semester of 1L year, students take supplemental workshops on outlining and other skill-based topics. In the spring semester, first years have access to a class with additional focus on legal writing and legal analysis. Picking up again in the 3L year and even after graduation, students are provided specialized bar prep through multiple bar-specific classes in addition to supplemental workshops and materials.

Wellness

The Student Affairs Office is deeply committed to promoting student wellness and offers dedicated programming and guidance around managing stress and adjusting to law school life.

As a Colorado Law student, you will have access to CU's state of the art rec center, Chautauqua Park's hiking trails located just 1 mile from the law school, and CU's club sports teams.

CU offers free counseling to all law students through Counseling and Psychiatric Services (CAPS), and the Colorado Lawyers Assistance Program and Colorado Lawyers Helping Lawyers provide free and confidential resources for our students.

It's no coincidence that Colorado Law consistently ranks in the top 10 law schools for quality of life.

JD Admission Standards

Above all, Colorado Law values leadership, character, diversity, and commitment to service in its students. The small size of the student body—about 170 in each entering class—and the large number of applicants requires a very selective admissions process. Admissions decisions are based on many factors, including undergraduate grade-point average (GPA) and the Law School Admission Test (LSAT) score, as well as other indicators of ability, motivation, and achievement.

JD Application Process

The Admissions Committee considers applications beginning in October. Applicants are notified of decisions on a rolling basis from October until the class is filled, usually in May. Admission from the waitlist, which is not ranked, can occur as late as August, and the number of offers varies from year to year. Find complete application instructions at Isac.org and colorado.edu/law/admissions.

International Students

International applicants have additional requirements as explained on our website, including transcripts showing completion of the equivalent of an American bachelor's degree, foreign degree verification, and transcript translation, if applicable. The TOEFL is required of all students whose native language is not English, as a thorough and excellent command of written and spoken English is crucial to success in law school. After admission, international students must submit a financial affidavit stating that they have the financial resources to support themselves while attending school in the United States, because Colorado Law cannot offer loan assistance to international students. All admitted international students are considered for merit-based scholarships.

Transfer Students

Students who have completed at least one full year of JD study (approximately 30 semester credits) at a law school accredited by the American Bar Association may apply for fall transfer admission to Colorado Law. The number of transfer students admitted varies each year, and only those who have done very well in their law studies elsewhere have a substantial chance of admission.

Visiting Students

Colorado Law admits a very limited number of students who are receiving their law degree from another law school to study here for the fall or spring semester.

Admission as a visiting student is available to applicants who have completed one or two years of high-quality work at another law school and have demonstrated a compelling need to attend Colorado Law. Financial aid for visiting students is usually handled by a consortium agreement between Colorado Law and the degree-granting institution.

Master of Studies and LLM

The Admissions Committee will review applications on a rolling basis. Applicants will be notified via email of the committee's decisions. Students interested in the LLM program should see the website for application instructions. Please submit all MSL materials directly to the Colorado Law Admissions Office.

Find complete application instructions at colorado.edu/law/msl and colorado.edu/law/llm.

Financial Aid

All admission decisions are made without regard to students' financial need. Every attempt is made to provide full financial assistance through federal and private educational loans, grants, work study, and scholarships. Students applying for financial aid, private law scholarships, or grants based on financial need must complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA, studentaid.gov) as soon as possible after December 1. Eligible students are awarded a Federal Direct Unsubsidized Loan up to a maximum of $20,500 per year. Graduate PLUS loans are available to students, in addition to the Direct Loan, up to the cost of attendance. Graduate PLUS loans are federally guaranteed, but, unlike Direct loans, they have good-credit requirements for borrowers. Private alternative law loan programs have interest rates and fees that vary according to the lender, the credit rating of the student, and whether there is a co-signer. Both loan fees and interest rates may be higher than those of the Direct loans, and there is no cap on interest rates. Additionally, private loan aid is not eligible for any of the federal repayment or forgiveness programs.

Scholarships, Fellowships, and Awards

All admitted first-year JD students are automatically considered for scholarships, as recipients are selected by the Admissions and Financial Aid Committee after an offer of admission has been made. Scholarships may be awarded through August. Colorado Law also offers scholarship money to second-year and third-year students each spring. More than 100 scholarships, fellowships, and awards are given annually based on academic and financial considerations. These scholarships are awarded based on multiple criteria, such as service to the law school, economic need, and demonstration of assistance in advancing the diversity of the student body.

Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act

The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) affords certain rights with respect to a student's education records. Copies of the policy are available in the Wise Law Library and the Rules of the Law School on the website.
