WELCOME TO GEORGETOWN LAW

Tradition. Innovation. A superb faculty. A curriculum unmatched in breadth and depth. And all of this just steps away from the Capitol and Supreme Court. At Georgetown, you learn the law in the place where laws are made.

Wherever your passion for the law takes you—practicing at a global law firm, tackling juvenile justice reform, running for public office—Georgetown Law provides you with a pathway to a career you will love.

“The challenges of today’s world make it clearer than ever that lawyers have a crucial role to play — as public servants, defenders of rights, and advocates for justice. For 150 years, Georgetown Law has stood for academic excellence and commitment to social justice. From our campus at the heart of the nation’s capital, steps away from where laws are written and argued, our graduates go out across the country and around the world, serving as leaders in communities large and small. I am proud that we are a community that cares for its own and for others.”

— William M. Treanor, Dean

THE DC ADVANTAGE

66,000+

Number of times Georgetown Law and its faculty were cited in the media last year

---

100

Percent of Supreme Court cases mooted at Georgetown Law in 2020-2021

Learning the Law Where Laws Are Made

Take a few short steps from the Georgetown Law campus, and you'll find yourself looking up at a familiar sight—the U.S. Capitol. Walk a few minutes more, and you'll be standing in front of the U.S. Supreme Court.

At Georgetown, you will study the dynamic processes of the law in a real-world laboratory. Our students have an unparalleled vantage point—just minutes away from the Congress that enacts laws, the Supreme Court that interprets them, and the executive agencies that enforce them.

We are, quite simply, a place like no other. Consider the breadth and scope of knowledge and the level of experience represented in the Georgetown Law faculty. Our professors serve in key federal government posts, provide expert testimony for congressional committees, and help shape national policy. You'll frequently see them interviewed on national television and quoted in major newspapers.

Trial Run

Before most lawyers present oral arguments before the U.S. Supreme Court, they first make a stop at Georgetown Law.

At our Supreme Court Institute (SCI) Moot Court, lawyers about to appear before the Court hone their arguments beforehand while students observe. They receive critiques from a panel of prominent Supreme Court practitioners, many from leading D.C. law firms.

A young man and woman are sitting at a wooden table outdoors. The man, on the left, is wearing a blue denim shirt and is looking towards the woman. The woman, on the right, has long dark hair and is wearing a black sweater. She is smiling and looking at the man. There are books and papers on the table in front of them. The background is a blurred outdoor setting with trees and a building.

“The Supreme Court Moot Program is just one of the many unique educational experiences students have at their disposal—and is one of my favorites. Having some of the best practicing litigators and Georgetown’s brilliant professors strategizing in the same room is incredibly inspiring and makes me excited about the prospect of utilizing my legal education to make the world a better place.”

— Lindsay Kirschner, L’22

OUR OWN THINK TANKS

Taking full advantage of our D.C. location, Georgetown Law's 22 Centers and Institutes are "think tanks/do tanks" right here on campus. Many are multidisciplinary, working in collaboration with Georgetown University's preeminent graduate and professional schools.

WHERE THEORY MEETS PRACTICE

20

400+

Externships

---

170

Experiential courses

Because of the scope of our curriculum, you are guaranteed a seat in an experiential course during every upperclass semester. We offer four types of experiential courses, each with distinct benefits:

Clinics

Our 20 clinics provide you with a unique opportunity to advise or represent actual clients, both here in D.C. and around the world, while simultaneously receiving intensive supervision and feedback from faculty.

Practicums

In practicum courses, you work on projects or cases under the direction of a supervising attorney, while studying law in action in an associated seminar. These courses give you a great opportunity to become a subject matter expert, cultivate your legal skills, and begin to develop a professional identity. They also enable you to build networks that can be tapped for future internships and jobs. You can choose from more than 30 practicum courses in areas including public policy, human rights, environmental law, business law, regulatory law, health law, and more.

Externships

By integrating classroom work with real-world work experience, our semester-long externships give you the opportunity to see law in action while gaining a deeper understanding of how legal practice happens. More than 400 of our J.D. students participate in externships each year.

Simulations

In our simulation courses, you step into the lawyer's role in a wide range of hypothetical scenarios. Our renowned National Security Law simulation, for example, puts you in the middle of a national security crisis—such as a pandemic disease outbreak or cyber attack—and requires you to respond in real time.

“I came to Georgetown wanting to learn more about technology law, and Georgetown didn’t disappoint! Through the Technology Law and Policy Scholars Program, the Georgetown Law Technology Review, and the huge number of tech classes, I was able to begin pursuing my passions and spent my 1L summer as a ‘metaverse lawyer’ researching legislation and litigation involving augmented reality, virtual reality and extended reality devices. It is incredible to be in the middle of such a new and evolving field of law and, with the support provided by the Georgetown community, I’m excited to see where this path will take me!”

An Unparalleled Edge in Your Career Path

From Top 100 law firms to the Justice Department to NGOs, Georgetown students are in high demand—both for summer jobs and for full-time employment after graduation. Employers know that our students are ready for practice on Day 1.

We offer one of the most extensive on-campus law firm recruiting programs in the nation. Combined with our other private sector, government and public interest interview programs, we schedule approximately 7,000 interview opportunities for our students each year.

Finding Your Calling

Georgetown is among just a few law schools in the country that provides a dedicated public interest career center: our Office of Public Interest and Community Service (OPICS).

As a student here you can consult our OPICS team about government and public interest placements, career planning, networking and recruiting opportunities, and much more. Because Washington, D.C. is the heart of the nation's public interest community, you'll have access to a vast array of opportunities with non-profit organizations and government agencies.

Public Interest Corps

All incoming J.D. students are eligible to apply to Georgetown's Public Interest Corps. As a participant, you receive enhanced public interest academic, career, and community support, including alumni mentorship and specialized career counseling.

Delaney Post-Graduate Residency Program

Launched in 2016, the Delaney Post-Graduate Residency Program is a training and mentoring program for graduates participating in year-long fellowships in the public sector. This program was made possible through a generous gift from April McClain-Delaney (L'89) and Rep. John Delaney (L'88).

“As someone particularly interested in business law, I have been able to take courses unique to Georgetown that specifically focus on developing an understanding of corporate functions, financial markets and leadership with a cohort of other Business Law Scholars interested in transactional law. Coupled with mentorship connections to an amazing number of Georgetown Law alumni currently practicing at large firms, I feel well prepared to begin a career in corporate law by relying on a stronger academic foundation and wider professional network from day one.”

Tailoring Your Own Course of Study

Georgetown Law offers a wider array of courses than any other law school—over 500 J.D. courses and seminars each year. In choosing your courses and other academic experiences—such as studying abroad—you have the flexibility to pursue a broad and diverse curriculum or a tailor-made program in one of our many specialty areas, including international, constitutional, tax, environmental, and health care law.

We offer two curricular options for 1L students, each providing the foundational knowledge and skills to prepare you well for advanced coursework and legal practice:

Curriculum A provides a thorough grounding in foundational subjects while enabling you to select from a diverse menu of six to seven elective courses in the spring semester, drawn from two major areas of law: legislative/administrative and international/comparative.

Curriculum B was developed to address three important changes in legal practice and theory: the emergence of the regulatory state; the overlap between the common law subjects of torts, contracts, and property; and the important influence of other disciplines such as economics, history, and philosophy.

A young man with short brown hair and glasses, wearing a blue button-down shirt and khaki pants, stands outdoors. He is holding a black bag strap over his shoulder. The background is a blurred scene of trees with yellow and green leaves, suggesting an autumn setting. A blue text box is overlaid on the bottom right of the image.

“Being in D.C. during the school year has allowed me many opportunities. The most striking one was the ability to intern with the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia. Since I was there for an entire semester, rather than just a summer internship, I was able to be more involved in cases that came before the court. It was immensely rewarding to immediately apply all of the things I learned in 1L in one of the most important district courts in the country. None of it would have been possible at any other law school.”

Global Law Scholars

Approximately 20 incoming J.D. students each year are selected for the prestigious Global Law Scholars program, which prepares students for transnational practice by combining language skills and cultural familiarity with rigorous and directed legal training. Students can also study for a semester at our Center for Transnational Legal Studies in London or through another semester abroad program. The Law Center also offers a joint degree with Institut d'Études Politique de Paris (Sciences Po).

Business Law Scholars

The Business Law Scholars program is designed to help students gain extensive practical experience to better prepare for a career in corporate law, starting a business, or becoming a partner in a law practice. Through mentorship, participation in speakers series, business simulations and contests—including with the McDonough School of Business—and with guaranteed access to some of the more highly sought-after business-related courses, this cohort will develop vital business-related skills that will position students well for long-term success in business-related roles.

Technology Law & Policy Scholars

The Technology Law & Policy Scholars program gives students the opportunity to engage in rigorous academic work, to develop their technological skills, and to deepen their understanding of policy debates related to new and emerging technologies. Scholars will have the opportunity to work in a hands-on environment, pairing practical experience with a solid theoretical foundation.

“One of the wonderful things about Georgetown is the extremely diverse student body in terms of background, experiences, and interests. As a result of this, there is a student organization for everyone. Joining student organizations shaped my 1L experience beyond the classroom and allowed me to forge relationships with like-minded people and helped to keep me grounded as I navigate law school.”

SMALL SCHOOL FEEL

33

Typical size of a 1L small section class

502/25

502 upper division course sections with a typical enrollment of fewer than 25 students

An Intimate Learning Environment

Your introduction to the small-school feel of Georgetown Law begins in the first year, with your small section class of about 33 students and an even smaller Legal Practice seminar of about 25 students. In your upperclass years, you can choose from more than 500 small seminars, most of which enroll 25 or fewer students. Many of our students also pursue research and writing projects with individual professors.

Evening Program

Georgetown Law's J.D. Evening Program offers a unique opportunity to earn a degree from one of the top U.S. law schools without giving up your full-time job. You'll study with the same world-class faculty as full-time students, fully supported by the Law Center's career and academic support services. At the same time, you'll have the flexibility to complete your J.D. in three to four years, with class times that fit your working schedule.

Evening students earn the same degree as day students. They take the same required courses, including experiential education requirements; participate in the same extracurricular activities, from our top-rated journals to mock trial competitions; and are equally successful in securing career and clerkship opportunities.

All first-year evening students attend classes starting at 5:45 p.m. on weekday evenings. Upper-class students may take courses that meet after work, during the day, or a combination of both. Upper-class electives are also offered on weekends.

“The Women’s Legal Alliance helped me reach my full potential at Georgetown. By pairing me with a strong, female mentor a year ahead of me, I was able to get advice on classes and law school from someone that just went through it.”

— Claire Danberg, L’21

APPLY

Applying to law school is the first step in a transformative journey. The Georgetown Law Admissions Office is ready to guide you as you begin planning your life as a legal professional.

Georgetown offers a unique set of advantages for our students. From the moment you enter your first law school class, no other school better prepares you for practice. By the time you don your purple hood at graduation, you will be ready to thrive in whatever career path you have chosen.

What sets Georgetown apart? First, it's our location in Washington, D.C., which gives our students unparalleled access to the top legal theorists and practitioners in the world.

As a pioneer and national leader in experiential education, Georgetown has developed top-ranked clinical programs that enable our students to apply theory to practice in representing actual clients—from victims of family violence to refugees in federal immigration court.

And with more than 190 full-time faculty, Georgetown offers the most comprehensive legal curriculum in the nation: more than 500 J.D. courses and seminars. Alongside those extensive resources, we provide a close-knit community and individualized support, grounded in the university's tradition of "care for the whole person." There has never been a more important time for lawyers to go out into the world, committed to the highest ethics, and to fight for justice.

We invite you to learn about Georgetown Law and its diverse community of faculty, alumni, and students. We look forward to meeting you.

Andy Cornblatt
Metta and Keith Krach Dean of Admissions

“As a Baltimore resident, the daily commute to Georgetown Law is more than worth it. The experience of studying law mere steps from the Capitol and the Supreme Court has opened up a world of possibilities. From attending moot courts for the most prominent SCOTUS cases of our time to engaging directly with legislators and advocates on Capitol Hill, I feel like my academic experience is constantly enriched by the experiential opportunities here in Washington.”

— Hayley Roth, L'22

Georgetown Law's commitment to providing a personalized education begins with the admissions experience. Admissions at Georgetown is far more than a numbers game—we understand the importance of getting to know you by reading each and every part of your application.

We're here to answer any questions you may have about our school and our application process. Our goal is to build a vibrant, engaged, and passionate community at Georgetown, and we hope you will join us!

Who May Apply

Applicants who will possess a U.S. baccalaureate degree from an accredited college or university or the equivalent from a foreign institution prior to registration day are eligible for admission to Georgetown Law as candidates for the J.D. degree or any joint degree programs. Candidates may apply for admission to the Full-Time Division, the Part-Time/Evening Division, or "Both."

The American Bar Association requires that we advise applicants that, in addition to a bar examination, there are character, fitness, and other qualifications for admission to the bar in every U.S. jurisdiction.

Early Decision

The Early Decision process is designed for applicants who are certain that Georgetown Law is their first choice school. Offers of admission are binding through this process. Although candidates admitted under Early Decision are committed to attending Georgetown, and will not receive their financial aid information before their admissions decision, please be assured that you will be considered for merit scholarships and need-based financial aid in the same manner, and on the same timeline, as all other admitted students.

Regular Decision

The Admissions Committee reviews applications on a rolling basis as they are completed. We begin accepting applications on September 6. It is to your advantage to complete your application as early as possible in the admissions cycle.

Application Checklist

- Application Form (LSAC electronic application strongly preferred)
- Nonrefundable $85 application fee (see our website for fee waiver information)
- Personal statement and résumé
- LSAT, GRE, or GMAT score
- Transcripts from all undergraduate and graduate schools attended
- One required letter of recommendation (more than one may be submitted)

Financing Your Legal Education

We are committed to ensuring that you can pursue a legal education regardless of your financial circumstances. In 2020-2021, approximately 60 percent of our students received grants or scholarships.

The professionals in our Financial Aid office are here to guide you through all stages of the financial aid process. Our website contains detailed information about the types of assistance we offer, plus step-by-step instructions on how to apply. We encourage you to reach out to us directly to help answer any financial-related questions you may have.

Types of Financial Aid

Dean's Tuition Grants

Dean's Tuition Grants are awarded to approximately one-third of the full-time entering class based on financial need.

Educational Loans and Work Study

The Federal Direct Loan Program is the primary source of financial aid for Georgetown Law students. Students may also be eligible for other federal and private student loans and federally funded work-study opportunities.

Loan Repayment Assistance Program (LRAP)

Georgetown Law's loan repayment assistance program provides our graduates working in qualified public interest or government positions with assistance repaying their law school loans. Our LRAP was one of the first of its kind, and it remains among the strongest in the country.

Blume Public Interest Scholars

The Blume Scholars program provides financial and other support to selected students each year who demonstrate a commitment to spend most of their careers in public service.

Guaranteed Summer Public Interest Funding

The Equal Justice Foundation funding program guarantees summer funding to all 1L, 2L, and 3E Georgetown Law students who work for eligible public interest or government employers.

EXPLORING CAMPUS

Edward Bennett Williams Law Library

With over one million volumes of legal material, the EBW Law Library houses one of the largest academic law collections in the nation. The library is equipped with computer labs, free Lexis and Westlaw printing, a catalogue of old exams, a LiveHelp chat feature, and a state-of-the-art online catalogue that provides access to all of the materials housed in both the Georgetown Law library and other local libraries.

Sarah & Bernard Gewirz Center

The Gewirz student center provides students with the opportunity to share comfortable one, two, or three-bedroom apartments located on the Law Center campus. Each apartment is air conditioned and contains a kitchen, bathroom, and individual bedrooms. Gewirz also houses health care facilities, a childcare center, and a variety of gathering places for lectures and social events. To see a model apartment, ask Residence Life on the ground floor.

Bernard P. McDonough Hall

McDonough Hall, with its lecture halls, faculty offices, and student service space, is at the center of our five-building campus.

Scott K. Ginsburg Sport & Fitness Center

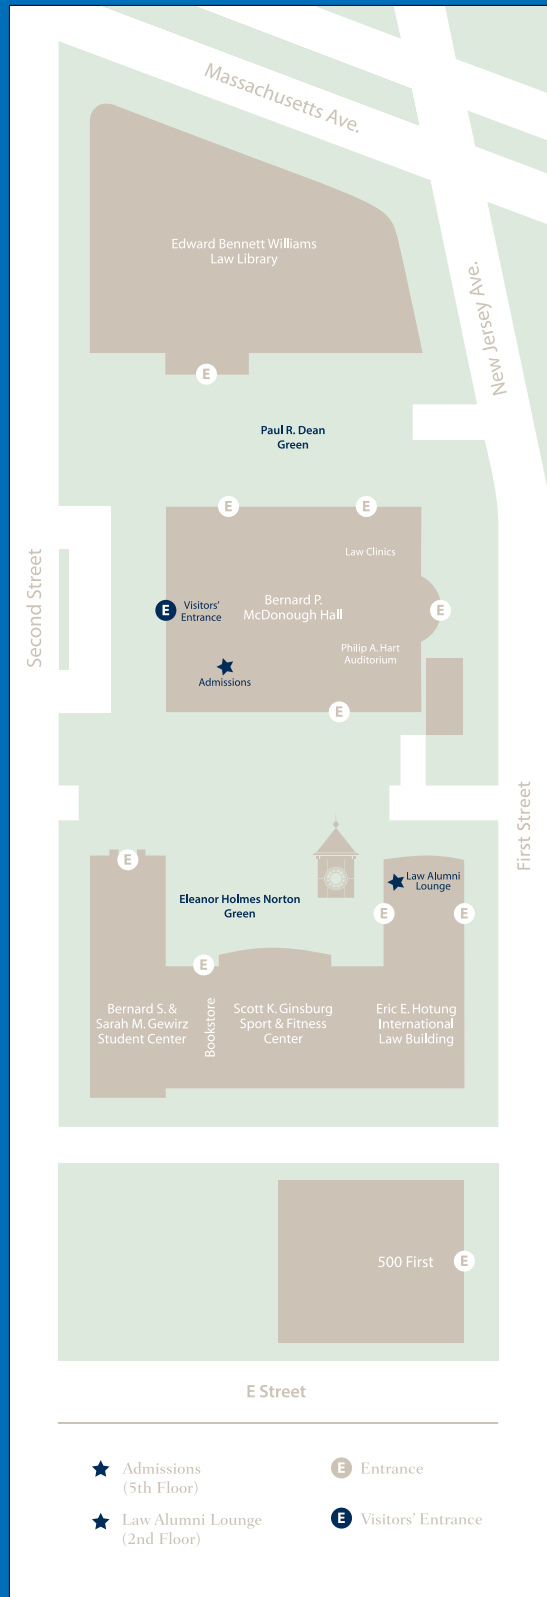

The Sport & Fitness Center provides a full array of athletic facilities to students and alumni as an important part of Georgetown Law's focus on wellness and cura personalis – care of the whole person.

Eric E. Hotung International Law Building

The Hotung building brings all of the components of the international programs under one roof. The building houses many classrooms, seminar rooms, and faculty and program offices, as well as the O'Neill Alumni Center and the Moot Court room, where Supreme Court cases are mooted prior to trial.

500 First

500 First Street offers a mix of classrooms, offices, and communal spaces. The building provides opportunities for cross-campus collaboration on innovative policy solutions across fields including health, climate, technology, education, and human rights. It is the home to many of Georgetown Law's Centers and Institutes and some McCourt School of Public Policy centers and institutes.
